One Horse to Launch One Horse Express Rifle in Collaboration With Atrius Development Group

BROWNSTOWN, Ind., June 19, 2026 — One Horse, an American firearms manufacturer, announced the launch of the One Horse Express Rifle, a full-production rifle developed in collaboration with Atrius Development Group.

The One Horse Express comes equipped with the Atrius Development Group FRS, or Forced Reset Selector, installed and tuned for out-of-the-box operation.

The One Horse Express key features:

- Atrius Development Group FRS (Single-Sided)
- Thril RTG grip
- Thril CSS stock
- Breek Arms Warhammer Mod2
- 16-inch CrMoV nitride SOCOM-profile barrel with 1:8 twist, dimpled
- 15-inch Express-Lock Handguard System with enhanced lock-up
- Low-profile, staked, steel gas block, mid-length gas system
- H2 buffer system

The One Horse Express will be available beginning June 19, 2026.

“This rifle was built to run,” said Jeremy Hammons, CEO of One Horse. “The One Horse Express represents a significant step forward for One Horse and for production rifle manufacturing. This collaboration pairs Atrius’ selector technology with a rifle platform engineered, assembled and tuned as a complete system from day one. Atrius and One Horse share the same standard: disciplined manufacturing, dependable performance and a finished product the end user can trust and be proud to own.”

“Since day one, the Atrius Forced Reset Selector has set the standard for what is possible in this industry,” said Ryan Spadafore, CEO and founder of Atrius Development Group. “Partnering with One Horse is the kind of move that changes the conversation. They represent what we respect in American manufacturing: family ownership, precision-driven production and a commitment to performance. This launch is more than a new rifle. It is an example of the industry working together to move gun culture in a positive direction. We're proud to stand alongside One Horse as we take that next step together. Together we win."
