

TIRAMISU

P A P E R I E

8 April 2016

It's time you got some Southern Charm and Northern Crass.

New York—Are you havin' a good day? Havin' a bad one? Doesn't matter. We've got the little pick-me-up no matter how you're feelin'.

Tiramisu Paperie is the paper products company that gives you attitude with a slap and a tickle. Its founder and creative director is Lisa DeVito Sarmento, a real Southern Italian in every sense of the phrase. She's Italian by ancestry and marriage. And she's Southern Italian. We're talking south of the Mason-Dixon Line Southern. So when she says, "I'm gonna slap your mamma," she means it.

Tiramisu Paperie products are heavy on attitude because Lisa is all about design that says something. Words are her thing. Usually with a sharp wit, but also with great design. A little sarcastic? Fugetaboutit. A little fun? You're killin' me here. Everything she creates is designed to make you smile.

Before Lisa kicked Tiramisu into reality 2 years ago, she put her Italian wit to use as an award-winning art director in Nashville's advertising agency community. Lisa holds a Masters in Fine Arts in Graphic Design. In addition to Tiramisu Paperie, she's an instructor in design at The Art Institute of Tennessee.

Visit Lisa at Booth 1129 at the National Stationery Show. She'll pinch your cheek, talk you to death and put a smile on your face. Just like you mamma would.

See Tiramisu on the web and at these fine social media outlets:

www.tiramisupaperie.com

Instagram: @tiramisupaperie

twitter: @tiramisupaperie

Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/TiramisuPaperieGifts>

Pinterest: <https://www.pinterest.com/tiramisupaperie/>

Booth 1129 at The National Stationery Show.

###