Announcing Talini, a new luxury linens collection made in Italy

Charlottesville, Virginia, August 16, 2015

Talini is a new luxury bed linens and home accessories collection with a fresh, modern feel founded by designer Ann Driskill in late 2014. The designs start with a love of color and natural textiles-especially linen and simple detailing keeps the focus on the beauty of the fabrics.

The first Talini collection was designed using 100% Italian linen in classic white and ivory plus a range of 8 yarn-dyed colors in 3 weave textures-basketweave, sateen and herringbone. These colors and textures can be mixed together in many ways to achieve a personalized palette and look. Talini also offers bedding in Egyptian cotton, and home accessories in cashmere, wool/angora and velvet. Retail prices range from $70 for a cotton percale or sateen standard pillowcase to $1640 for a 100% cashmere king blanket. All Talini products are made in Italy.

For more information about the collection, visit www.talinihome.com.

Designer and founder Ann Driskill was trained at the University of Virginia and Parsons School of Design. Previously, she was a fashion designer in New York and a creative director at Mattel in Los Angeles. With a lifelong passion for interior design, she created the Talini collection for those who want clean, tailored bedding (perhaps in some fun colors) made of the highest quality Italian fabrics. In addition to offering products on the website and at select retailers, Talini often works with architects, interior designers and decorators and can fabricate custom bedding and other textile products.
