MAKE IT SIMPLE WITH OIF EXPORTING

OIF Exporting is working to fulfill a need in the industry by bridging the gap between US manufacturers and international customers. Gun Trade World finds out how the company can smooth out your export journey.

The team at OIF Exporting works closely with both US manufacturers and its international customers to make exporting firearms and accessories easy. The company's new website was built so these two entities can select what their needs are and then learn how OIF Exporting can help them.

"Many US Manufacturers don't have the time and don't want to deal with everything that goes into exporting their products, so we do that for them," says Katie Eads, Client Relations, OIF Exporting.

"We are their exporting department. We help them build a business plan to increase their sales internationally. Manufacturers are busy running their business. We will take care of exporting.

"International Customers want US Manufactured products. We help by purchasing what they want. We warehouse the products for them and then ship their orders all together in one shipment. We also work with manufacturing partners to modify products to make them legal in their area."

Braum Law, the legal arm of the company, has over 40 years of experience helping FFLs start their businesses, operate their businesses, and in many instances, save their businesses.

"To put it simply, we are regularly entrusted with what are often the most important issues that business owners will ever face, and we gladly accept the weight that burden brings." says Owner and Attorney, Scott Braum.

OIF Exporting says that your success depends on compliance with ATF and other agencies who affect you. Braum Law has years of experience guiding clients through regulatory and other situations, both routine and extraordinary, including:

- ATF inspections, conferences, and hearings
- OSHA/lead inspections
- Import/export transactions, customs issues, and ITAR/AECA compliance
- Implementation of required ITAR controls throughout your operations

- ATF product classifications
- Firearm product liability and anti-industry defense
- Instruction and safety manuals
- Range safety and liability
- NFA manufacturing and transfer issues
- Federal excise tax submissions, consulting, and appeals

As well as helping US companies export across the world, OIF Exporting also assists international customers looking to grow their business in the US.

"Hundreds of manufacturers are scattered throughout the U.S.," continues Katie.

"You can try to call them all or, you can contact OIF

Exporting. We are in the U.S., we already have relationships with most major manufacturers and distributors, and we can get you what you need easily and efficiently.

The company can also help you at SHOT Show, the biggest international trade show for the hunting, shooting and tactical markets.

Katie commented: "You travelled across the world, you spent a ton of money but you can't get that appointment or figure out how to actually purchase, license, and ship the products you need."

"OIF Exporting has representatives at SHOT Show. Just contact us and let us help you get that deal done."

We have highlighted a small fraction of how OIF Exporting can help you, you can find out much more on the company's website.

"All of our credentials, manufacturing partners, and information about our Law Firm are all on our website for easy access," says Katie. "We make it easy for US manufacturers to understand what we can do for them and likewise for international customers, plus we are featuring a US Manufacturer each month on our home page to help promote their businesses."
