North American Arms Announces the Recluse: A Swing-Out Evolution

Provo, UT — December 1, 2025 — North American Arms (NAA), a leader in ultra-compact defensive firearms, today announced the release of the Recluse, the newest addition to its lineup and one of the most requested products since its initial teaser last year.

The Recluse builds on the proven performance and attitude of the Black Widow, now featuring a swing-out cylinder system for quicker, more intuitive loading and unloading. Designed for confident handling, it comes equipped with an oversized rubber grip and a 2-inch barrel, giving shooters added control in a compact, American-made platform.

“The interest in the Recluse has been incredible,” said Rachel Stilwell, Marketing Manager at North American Arms. “Customers have been asking for a swing-out version of the Black Widow for a long time. The Recluse delivers exactly that—familiar, capable, and fast. We’re thrilled to finally put it in their hands.”

The Recluse will make its formal debut at SHOT Show 2026, but shipments are available now, allowing customers and dealers to get their first look ahead of the show.
